

this program or that another 25, or 30 percent. I kind of actually like Senator Chambers' attitude there for awhile when he did say we were going to phase out the law school. We do have two law schools, and statistically we graduate 20 times as many lawyers in the United States as Japan does per capita, for example. Maybe we don't need two law schools. Maybe we don't need two medical schools. At least we ought to start examining this direction rather than the direction now that we seem to be taking of pop 5 percent here, add 10 percent there, add 30 percent there, everybody's favorite program. And, yes, I've got some of them too, just like everybody else. But at least this year, when we know we are walking into a lot of problems, let's pretty well hold this thing where it is and even consider taking off some of what we added rather than continuing the process of adding. There is a certain thing about the process here which everybody has watched, and it goes something like this, you give me mine, I give you yours. When you have two items it is kind of "iffy" as to whether you get it. When you get three in the pot almost everybody can get it. From there it feeds on itself. We are right on the verge of the feeding on itself system right now. I am going to vote against this one. I'm going to suggest we even consider maybe later on taking off some of the others and face up to the fact that it's going to be a tight year.

SENATOR HANNIBAL: Thank you, Senator DeCamp. Senator Smith, please.

SENATOR SMITH: Thank you, Mr. Chairman. Yes, I know it is a tight year, John. But I'm going to rise to support Senator Marsh's amendment. This is not additional or new spending. It is a continuation of something that the state has done. The Academy of Sciences has been in existence for 106 years and we've funded this publication for 85 years. Let's not stop now supporting something that we've done for this length of time. There is a very modest amount, $8,820. I ask you to support the Marsh amendment as I will.

SENATOR HANNIBAL: Thank you, Senator Smith. Senator Marsh, would you like to close on your amendment, please. Senator Marsh has waived closing. The question before you is the adoption of the Marsh amendment. All those in favor will vote aye, those opposed vote nay. Please vote. We have several amendments up here and we might as well get through them as fast as we can. Please register your vote. Have you all voted? Senator Marsh.
